

Couple Work Together as Chiropractors Chiropractic Works

When Link Nguyen and Be Phetsinorath decided to build a future together, there was no question about their career choices. The only decision they had to make was where they would make their home.

As doctors of chiropractic health, the husband-and-wife team both wanted to start their own practice. In 2006, they opened Chiropractic Works PC, where they provide a variety of hands-on therapeutic treatments, cold laser therapy, kinesiotaping and acupuncture for disorders and injuries. Today they are a successful, family-oriented practice, owned and operated as a husband-and-wife team with two assistants. Chiropractic Works PC is the Mobile Area Chamber's Small Business of the Month.

Their clients range from newborn to geriatric patients who seek treatments from disorders including colic, ear infections, headaches, various musculoskeletal complaints and injuries. Chiropractic

Works is the only multilingual and multicultural practice in Mobile. The doctors speak five languages – English, Laotian, Spanish, Thai and Vietnamese – so they can accommodate a wide range of clients. They work hand in hand with their clients' neurosurgeons, orthopaedists, physicians and therapists to help patients obtain the best quality of care possible.

Phetsinorath is a Mobile native, and Nguyen is from Dallas. They met at Parker College of Chiropractic, now Parker University in Dallas, where they both earned doctor of chiropractic degrees. After graduation, Phetsinorath was adamant about returning home to Mobile to start a practice.

Located at 4909 Government Blvd., the office administration process is almost paperless. "We are a high-tech operation," said Nguyen. "We have been using an online system long before the medical industry decided to go online with patient filing." New patients input their medical information on a computer in the waiting area, and the sign-in log is a digital pad. The only visible hard-copy materials are information booklets and pamphlets.

The doctors remain competitive with the current popular rise of natural medicine. "We use natural herbs and supplements also for treatments," said Phetsinorath. "And we educate our clients on a healthy lifestyle and preventive measures they can do themselves to help alleviate some disorders, even if that sometimes means limiting a client to one visit for treatment."

Also available in their office are kids' backpacks designed to support a child's back and neck when carrying school books.

In 2010, Chiropractic Works was awarded the Mobile Area Chamber's Eagle Award for their achievements.
