Resource Alignment

A shift is occurring at membership organizations across the country. Chambers are facing tough choices between staying focused on their mission and making money.

Our chamber is not alone. An increasing number of other organizations or businesses can and do provide similar high-quality services.

So how do we compete in a changing and competitive marketplace? If revenue from chamber programming declines or goes away, how do we continue to operate the chamber business? How do we ensure that we're equipped to compete with other communities and to reach our economic and community development goals?

Our chamber is, without question, an events-driven organization, holding more than 100 high-impact programs each year. Additionally, our chamber continues to have larger-purpose goals such as advocacy and economic development. Over time, our mission will necessitate shifting an increasing part of our focus from chamber programming towards more community-based economic development.

A recent example of this is our support of a new business incubator – Innovation PortAL – on St. Louis Street in downtown Mobile. Building our innovation ecosystem is vital to building Mobile's economic future, and it will make it possible to retain and recruit the type of young talent that will help our city grow. This is only a part of our overall economic development goals. And it all takes resources to be effective.

Funding our economic development efforts, both in the traditional sectors and in the innovation realm, is absolutely necessary to keep our region competing on the world stage. Our chamber does this through our Partners for Growth (PFG) economic development initiative.

The recent campaign for PFG 2018-2022 was just successfully completed – and it would not have been possible without the support of 150 businesses and other investors who have a passion for Mobile's bright future. These partners know that although they sometimes do not see immediate benefits to their individual book-of-business, they understand there is real ROI potential when the chamber meets its economic development goals of jobs and capital investment.

Mobile's economic success is the direct result of the chamber and its partners' work. As our chamber continues to evolve, it's important that we ensure the resources are there to keep our economy growing and thriving well into the future.

SSAB Americas Announces Plans to Move Head Office from Chicago Area to Mobile

"Crown jewel."

"Reflects success."

"Evidence of Mobile's strong business case and quality of life."

These are just some of the reactions from state and local officials to SSAB Americas' plans to relocate the division's head office from Lisle, Ill., to Mobile, announced at the Mobile Area Chamber on Oct. 19. More details will be announced over the coming months about the exact location, with the transition expected to take place throughout 2018.

"Mobile is a growing community with a booming economy; we are excited to expand our presence in the area as a trusted employer and community partner," said Chuck Schmitt, president, SSAB Americas. "Moving our team to Mobile will ensure that our senior leaders and support staff work in closer proximity to our front-line operations, where key decisions are made for our business and customers."

SSAB Americas, a division of SSAB based in Stockholm, Sweden, is one of North America's largest producers of steel plate and coil, serving many industrial markets and found in heavy machinery, ships' wind towers, rail cars and more.

Locally, at its facility in Axis, the company employs nearly 600 employees and supports another 200 contractor positions. The head office is expected to create approximately 60 high-paying jobs and the company's investment is valued at approximately $3 million.

Chuck Schmitt speaks with the local media after the announcement SSAB Americas would locate its head office in Mobile.

In October, SSAB Americas announced Mobile as the site of its new home office. Pictured here are Chamber executives with elected officials and economic developers involved in the project.

"Attracting a corporate headquarters is a game-changer for any community. SSAB Americas' decision to locate here in Mobile County is the next chapter in what has been an extraordinary partnership between the company and the community," said Mobile County Commission President Merceria Ludgood.

"Corporate headquarters are viewed as the crown jewel of economic development and the ultimate prize for any community," Mayor Sandy Stimpson said. "SSAB's decision to locate its headquarters in Mobile will create high-paying jobs and add momentum to our downtown resurgence."

"SSAB is a great corporate citizen and we are delighted that they have decided to move their Americas corporate headquarters to Mobile. In addition, it is exciting to be adding another corporate headquarters to the business community in Mobile," said Mike Saxon, vice president - Mobile Division of Alabama Power, the company that connected SSAB with the Mobile Area Chamber of Commerce economic development team.

"Over the last decade SSAB has made significant investment in its Mobile facility while adding high-paying jobs," said Troy Wayman, Mobile Area Chamber of Commerce vice president of economic development. "The decision to make Mobile home for its Americas headquarters is evidence that we have a strong business case matched with an exceptional quality of life. This project is an excellent example of our economic development strategy to recruit headquarters and other high-paying jobs to our area."

5 Things You Need to Know:

- 1 The corporate headquarters will be located in Mobile. Expect more details from SSAB representatives in the coming months.
- 2 About 60 jobs are associated with the announcement and the capital investment is valued at $3 million.
- 3 The transition will take place throughout 2018.
- 4 The company has nearly 600 employees at its steel mill in Axis.
- 5 Over the last decade SSAB has made significant investment in its Mobile facility and added more than 100 high-paying jobs.

Innovation PortAL

Creating Seed Fund for Startups

With the help of a Regional Innovation Strategies grant, Innovation PortAL is in the process of creating a seed fund to support entrepreneurs and their startup ventures in the Gulf Coast region.

In September, the Economic Development Administration (EDA) announced the award of nearly $300,000, the fully requested amount, to the Mobile Area Chamber of Commerce Foundation.

"This is a testament to the entrepreneurial talent in our region and illustrates the need to support and develop future innovators," said Mobile Area Chamber President and CEO Bill Sisson. "Our continued work with local and regional partners helps us stand out in a very competitive process."

"Seed investment offerings targeted to entrepreneurs in the Gulf Coast region are limited," said Hayley Van Antwerp, executive director of Innovation PortAL. "As a result, our high-potential entrepreneurs are either moving to other markets in search of capital or putting their efforts on hold. This seed fund will offer our region's entrepreneurs the critical funding required to launch and scale their ventures."

From a pool of 217 applicants, 42 organizations – including nonprofits, institutions of higher education and entrepreneurship-focused organizations – from 28 states received more than $17 million to create and expand cluster-focused proof-of-concept and commercialization programs, and early-stage seed capital funds.

This seed fund will offer our region's entrepreneurs the critical funding required to launch and scale their ventures.

Hayley Van Antwerp
executive director
Innovation PortAL

Innovation PortAL previously received a $2.9 million U.S. Department of Commerce Economic Development Administration grant in September 2016. Those funds are being used to renovate the former Threaded Fasteners building at 358 St. Louis St. in downtown Mobile, which will become Innovation PortAL's headquarters.

Innovation PortAL connects entrepreneurs with the tools, equipment and resources they need to be successful, including intensive mentoring, specialized curriculum and access to networks and capital.

Chamber Names Continental Motors Group 2017 Manufacturer of the Year

Continental Motors Group renewed a commitment to Mobile as the site of its corporate global headquarters after a lengthy search, retaining several hundred high-paying jobs locally.

A leading manufacturer of new and rebuilt FAA-certified piston engines, spare parts and components for small propeller-driven airplanes, Continental was named the Mobile Area Chamber's Manufacturer of the Year.

"Continental has long been the cornerstone of our ever-growing aviation sector," said Troy Wayman, the Chamber's vice president of economic development. "Their world-class engines and reputation shine a spotlight on Mobile on an international stage. Continental has played an integral role in helping Mobile's aerospace cluster grow and flourish."

With an anticipated late 2018 completion date, the new 260,000-square-foot complex will replace the company's current 11-building footprint. The company is investing approximately $70 million in the building and new equipment. Future plans include a customer and technical service division to serve its worldwide clients 24 hours a day, 365-days a year in multiple languages.

Opened in Mobile in 1966 when the original company, based in Michigan, was looking to separate its aviation business from its vehicle engine manufacturing operations, Continental's current parent company, AVIC International Holding Corp., is based in Beijing, China.

"We are proud that Continental calls Mobile home," said Wayman. "They are the perfect example of how manufacturing continues to thrive in Alabama."

Claude Moore Jeweler Treats Customers with Respect

Claude Moore Jewelers was named the Chamber's small business of the month. Pictured here are employees: front row, Julie Moore, Helen Moore and Beth Moore Sumlin; and back row, C. Howard Moore III and Claude H. Moore IV.

Claude Moore IV's great-grandfather believed in providing quality products for a fair price. His grandfather's business credo was: "Every man that walks through the door treated like a gentleman, and every woman that walks through the door treated like a lady."

The business that they built, Claude Moore Jeweler, still operates under those ideals today after 95 years in operation in Mobile.

"We strive for both quality of our products and quality customer service," said Moore IV, who represents the fourth generation of Moores to operate the store. "When you're dealing with a nicer gift, sometimes people may have a budget but they don't know exactly what they want, so we do our best to make them feel at ease, make them feel comfortable, kind of make them feel at home as best we can. I think that's helped us over the years."

Claude Moore Jeweler is the Mobile Area Chamber of Commerce's Small Business of the Month.

The business was established in 1922 by Claude Moore, who was trained in diamond-setting and hand engraving and opened up shop in the First National Bank building after returning home from World War I. Since then, the business has grown and changed locations, operating today with 16 employees at 3700 Dauphin Street, where it offers a full line of fine jewelry, watches and gifts and also provides appraisals, repairs and engraving services.

"Having been in business for 95 years, we feel like there's a certain level of trust amongst the community that comes with being in business for that long," Moore IV said.

Claude Moore Jeweler also offers a full bridal registry, a service that has grown since its inception, blossoming under the guidance of Moore IV's mother after she joined the family and the business in the late 1970s.

"I think that's one of the things that kind of sets us apart," Moore IV said. "We probably have the largest bridal selection in town for an independent store like ours, especially a locally owned one."

Moore IV and his business are active in charitable and civic causes, particularly the American Heart Association and Ronald McDonald House. He and his family were guests at a Ronald McDonald House in Atlanta 10 years ago when his daughter, Grace, was born with a congenital heart defect.

"She actually had to have a heart transplant when she was 19 days old," he said. "So we actually had to live in Atlanta for about 3½ months after she was born. We stayed at the Ronald McDonald House. When you're displaced for that long, it was an amazing place to stay, it had a great support system."

The future brings new challenges and new opportunities for Claude Moore Jeweler. As the store adjusts to meet the needs of a younger generation, Moore IV hopes to open new locations.

"We're hoping long-term to open some smaller, maybe not full-service, locations but just more of kind of satellite stores," he said. "We have a lot of people who work downtown, people who can't necessarily get out this way like they used to. Our goal, rather than having one really large store, is to hopefully have a west Mobile location, a downtown location – something to maybe not offer the full bridal registry services but our more popular gifts and jewelry items, just to make it easier and more convenient, to give them a taste of what we do."

Mobile Symphony

The Business of Making Music

With a reputation for solid performances of classical masterpieces generally only heard in much larger cities, the Mobile Symphony Orchestra (MSO) enhances the area's quality of life and helps the area recruit and retain businesses and industries.

Beyond the music is the business of music. In just two decades, the MSO has become Mobile's flagship arts organization, with a budget and audience exceeding all other local performing arts organizations combined.

"The Mobile Symphony is a small business that happens to make music instead of airplanes or ships," said Celia Mann Baehr, MSO president and CEO. "We have 11 full-time employees, six part-time teachers and 75 orchestra musicians with a payroll of almost $430,000 and an overall budget of almost $1.8 million. We are a significant small business on the Gulf Coast, and our education outreach in local schools is on par with most big businesses."

Some key economic drivers include:

- The Mobile Symphony has an overall regional economic impact of $7 million.
- MSO draws 35,000 to 40,000 concertgoers to downtown Mobile each season, dramatically boosting business at restaurants, bars and paid parking lots.
- MSO pays between $80,000 to $100,000 annually to the city and SMG management company for rental and services at the Saenger Theatre.
- MSO pays for more than 800 room nights a season at its partner hotel,

The Admiral, for orchestra members who come from elsewhere along the Gulf Coast. Approximately 30 percent of the musicians reside in Mobile; the rest are regional.

- The orchestra, which is made up of contracted professional musicians who are paid for every rehearsal and performance, has a contract with Dauphin Street Sounds to record all concerts.
- Ticket prices cover less than half of the costs of each concert. More than 650 donors – individuals, corporations, businesses and foundations – make up the rest. An average two-performance concert can cost between $80,000 to $100,000.

"The MSO is a great recruiting tool for international businesses and for retirees who come from areas with access to orchestras of excellent quality," said Baehr. "Invariably people who move here from Europe or large cities in the United States are blown away by our orchestra. I had one retired couple tell me that they routinely attended the New York Philharmonic and said they would put the MSO up against them any day. High praise indeed!"

20th Season Highlights

"Every orchestra has a personality, and the MSO has a particularly exuberant one," said Music Director Scott Speck. "This 20th anniversary season brings together all the things that make our orchestra special."

Speck will lead the orchestra for this season's concerts including the music of Gershwin's Piano Concerto in F, Vivaldi's "Four Seasons," Elgar's "Enigma Variations," Shostakovich's Symphony No. 5 and Mahler's Symphony No. 2, the most massive piece the MSO has ever performed.

Soloists for the season include Grammy-winning cellist Zuill Bailey, the Marcus Roberts Trio, violinist Chee-Yun and revered pianist Menahem Pressler, who will be 94 when he makes his Mobile debut.

FAST facts

- $1.8 overall annual budget
- $7M overall regional economic impact
- 30% of the orchestra musicians live in Mobile
- 800 room nights per season for orchestra
- Ticket prices start at $15 ($10 for students)
- Average two-performance concert costs $80,000 to $100,000
- Draws 35,000 to 40,000 concertgoers to downtown Mobile each season

Building on music for future generations, the MSO Youth Orchestra is an education and performance group for the Gulf Coast's most talented young musicians. Making education a priority, the MSO has the largest (and most successful) arts education program on the Gulf Coast. As school systems cut music from the curriculum, MSO fills the gap with classroom instruction at partner schools.

All concerts are held at the Saenger Theatre in downtown Mobile on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons. Memberships are available online at www.mobilesymphony.org, by phone at 251-432-2010, or at the symphony box office at 257 Dauphin St. More details can be found at www.mobilesymphony.org.

Finally, a membership package at Mobile's elite personal training facility.

$199/month for 24/7 gym access including personal training sessions. Call for details.

Company official: Philip G. Burton, president/CEO

Years in business: 5

Brief company description:

Burton Property Group (BPG) is a full-service real estate development, investment and management firm. Its focus is the acquisition, leasing, development and management of real estate assets. BPG's goal is to enhance the value of retail spaces by attracting strong national tenants and building well-balanced portfolios. Local properties include Jubilee Square in Daphne; BB&T Centre, Westwood Plaza

Shopping Center and Schillinger Town Center in Mobile; and McKenzie Village and Foley Square in Foley.

Why are you located in Mobile? "Family," said Burton. "The genesis of our company can be traced back to 1900 and five generations."

Why do you support the Mobile Area Chamber of Commerce's Partners for Growth initiative? "We are bullish on Mobile, and south Alabama as a whole," said Burton. "Our view is that the Mobile Area Chamber is the best tool available to our community to recruit and retain business in Mobile, which in turn helps our business. As the pie grows, hopefully, our piece grows with it. Our investment in Partners for Growth is our way of supporting that mission."

What do you see as Mobile's greatest potential? "That's a tough question, as we are rich in so many different areas but, generally speaking, I view our local economy as being well-balanced with tremendous potential in all sectors," Burton said.

Length of continuous Chamber membership: Since 2012.

Partners for Growth (PFG) is the Mobile Area Chamber's long-term economic and community development program. For more information, contact Katrina Dewrell, the Chamber's investor relations coordinator, at 251-431-8611 or kdewrell@mobilechamber.com.

Media Coverage for Mobile

The Chamber's communications and marketing team had a busy fall working with local, regional and national media with a variety of business-related topics including Amazon; ESPN coverage of the USA vs Oklahoma State football game; CreditDonkey – Best Chamber of Commerce for Small Business; the economic development process and incentives, including incentives vs. property taxes; Gov. Kay Ivey's visit to Mobile; and the Chamber's business retention and expansion program.

Chamber Creates Workforce Development Advisory Council

The inaugural meeting of the Chamber's workforce development advisory council was held this summer. The purpose of the group is to network and create resources all regional workforce partners can use, including a workforce development resource guide. The council was divided into sub-committees (business and industry; education; community and social barriers; and resources) in order to more effectively address each of the aforementioned areas.

Interested in South Africa?

This spring the Chamber is leading a group of members and guests on a 10-day trip to South Africa. The Chamber has several trips planned for 2018. In April, a group will travel to South Africa, and there are only four seats remaining. In addition, in October, there will be a group trip to cruise on the Danube River with less than 10 cabins remaining. Contact Leigh Perry-Herndon at 251-431-8645 or lherndon@mobilechamber.com if you are interested in more details.

Workshops Assist Small Businesses

The Chamber's small business development department recently hosted two seminars for entrepreneurs. In conjunction with Public Relations Council of Alabama - Mobile Chapter, more than 45 people attended a workshop on Navigating Public Relations for Small Business. Twenty-five people attended a seminar on Developing Effective Proposals for Contracting Opportunities. Jerry Ellison, program manager for the Alabama Procurement Technical Assistance Center, was the presenter.

Chamber Hires Spring Hill College Intern

Tom Burcham, a senior at Spring Hill College, is interning with the Chamber's communications and marketing department this semester. The department recently updated its intern project focus to include videos. Burcham and the department developed a video series on "Your Chamber at Work," comprised of 10 questions asked on camera by Chamber ambassadors and then answered by Chamber staff. When complete, each video will be one minute or less and promoted on the Chamber's social media channels and website.

PolitiFact Comes to Mobile

The Chamber assisted PolitiFact on developing a series of speaking engagements in Mobile as part of a study the organization is doing. PolitiFact grew out of the Tampa Bay Times, and is a watchdog organization measuring the accuracy of statements made by politicians. Angie Holan, a former business reporter for the Press-Register, heads up PolitiFact, now based in Washington D.C.

Chamber Hosts Trade Mission to Australia

The Chamber's trade division completed a successful business development and trade mission to Sydney, Australia and Auckland, New Zealand. Seventeen people representing 15 companies/organizations participated in this multi-industry mission focused on pre-screened, business-to-business meetings with potential local partners.

ALDOT Hosts Industry Forum for Bridge Project

The Chamber attended the ALDOT Industry Forum for the Mobile River bridge and bayway project. The forum was a platform to inform industry about the project and to stimulate interactions between interested parties.

I Am Mobile Ambassador Program

Shelby Glover, project manager for the Chamber's economic development department, completed Visit Mobile's tourism ambassador program and is now a certified Tourism Ambassador for the City of Mobile. This program is designed for community members who want to understand what Mobile's tourism industry has to offer.

The U.S. Small Business Administration recently completed the first Emerging Leaders program in southwest Alabama at the Mobile Area Chamber. Participants represented 20 companies from Mobile and Baldwin counties, Biloxi and Pensacola, with more than half being members of the Mobile Area Chamber. Each company president/CEO invested more than 100 hours over seven months, and graduated from the stage-two entrepreneurial training program with a three-year strategic growth action plan.

The Chamber, along with its program partners City of Mobile, Mobile County, Eastern Shore Chamber, Alabama Small Business Development Center and the Women's Business Alliance, are working to recruit the program back to Mobile in 2018.

FOX10 received the Chamber's Rev. Wesley A. James Minority Business Advocate Award during the annual Eagle Awards luncheon. FOX10 has partnered with the Chamber for 20 years for the Eagle Awards and remains committed to supporting diversity and inclusion.

Jacquitta Powell-Green, the Chamber's vice chair for minority business development with Commonwealth National Bank; Liz Freeman, chair of the Chamber's board of directors with Long's Human Resource Services; Stedman Graham; and Bill Sisson, president & CEO of the Chamber, participated in the Eagle Awards program.

Eagle Awards

In October, the Mobile Area Chamber hosted its annual Eagle Awards program. This year's keynote speaker was Stedman Graham. Winners included Gaines Plumbing and Harper Technologies. FOX10 received the Rev. Wesley A. James Minority Business Advocate Award. Prior to the luncheon, a panel of marketing professionals spoke on business and communications marketing and the direct role it plays in increased sales. In all, more than 300 Chamber members and guests participated in the day's events.

Harper Technologies LLC and Gaines Plumbing received Eagle Awards from the Chamber. Pictured with company executives is Stedman Graham (center), the keynote speaker.

Alabama Public Radio/WHIL

On July 1, 2011, WHIL Radio Mobile, formerly of Spring Hill College, joined Alabama Public Radio, a network of public radio stations based in Tuscaloosa that serves the western half of Alabama with a mixed format of news; music programs that include classical, folk, jazz and nostalgic; and other entertainment. Pictured above is Barbara Charnetski, the underwriting account executive and community liaison.

AMBASSADOR of the month

Having only moved to Mobile this past February from England, Matthew Lollar enjoys being an ambassador. "I love that being an ambassador affords me the opportunity to travel around the city and meet new businesses. I love people and enjoy business and not a week goes by that I don't meet both here in Mobile that are inherently adding value to our society," said Matthew Lollar.

Lollar, a native of Omaha, Nebraska, is a commercial sales director for Slingshot Inc., AT&T solution providers. The company sells AT&T products to both the residential and commercial markets.

Lollar is the Mobile Area Chamber's Ambassador of the Month. He is a graduate of Welsh Evangelical School of Theology, United Kingdom, with a diploma in theology.

Business Endeavors

Providence Hospital installed advanced technology capable of diagnosing and monitoring the smallest tumors more precisely and in less time. The new Biograph MCT positron emission tomography/computed tomography (PET/CT) scanner enhances and expands noninvasive imaging services for cancer patients. The open design allows many exams to be performed with the patient's head outside the machine, eliminating anxiety in claustrophobic patients.

Virginia College in Mobile announced new, streamlined programs providing educational options for students seeking a career-focused education. The shorter programs will cost less in tuition and allow participants to enter the workforce sooner. Classes in the new programs are offered at the campus located 3725 Airport Blvd., Suite 165. For more information, visit www.vc.edu.

Mott MacDonald, a global engineering, management and development consultancy firm, recently merged and relocated its Mobile and Daphne offices to the RSA Trustmark Bank building in downtown Mobile. The new offices will house the area's 23 employees and serve as the company's Southeast headquarters.

Austal USA delivered its sixth littoral combat ship (LCS) to the U.S. Navy. The future USS Omaha (LCS 12) is the nation's 10th LCS delivered to the Navy, one of two scheduled for delivery by the end of the year.

Mobile-headquartered ASF Transportation Group added a truckload terminal in Fort Smith, Ark., and a new brokerage location in Chicago. The Fort Smith expansion adds a key transportation hub to the firm's network of truckload locations, including Atlanta, Mobile and Memphis.

The Mobile County Commission finalized the purchase of the Semmes Public Library building from CVS Health. Located at 9150 McCrary Rd., the Mobile Public Library branch serves west and northwest county residents.

McKinley Communications Inc., a full-service marketing, graphics arts and public relations agency, moved its headquarters from Kansas City, Mo., to Spanish Fort to better serve its Southeast clientele.
