PUBLISHER'S NOTE:

BE A VOLUNTEER AND MAKE AN IMPACT

Bradley Byrne, Mobile Chamber President and CEO

When I first started volunteering with the Mobile Chamber in 1986, I joined a committee for education. That volunteer time made such a difference in my life, showing me how something so small then could have such an impact on me now.

Working on that task force taught me about the community and how everyone can make a difference. In this issue, we list the Mobile Chamber's current committees and task forces. I encourage you to look over this list and reach out and join one. I am sure the contacts you make will be priceless, and just being involved will make an impact on you and your business.

During my time in Washington, DC, the work I did with the military was inspirational. The Mobile Chamber has always worked with local military leaders to promote veterans' resources, military appreciation events and luncheons and even tapped business leaders to get involved. We've had some great experiences with the Mobile Bay Area Veterans Day Commission. The work they do is so rewarding.

Lastly, one of the first people I met with after becoming president and CEO of the Mobile Chamber was Bishop State Community College President Olivier Charles. I was so impressed with his leadership skills and his interest in building up the college and its commitment to its students, to the community and to the future workforce in Mobile. I am sure you will enjoy meeting him in these pages and learning what his plans are for the future of Bishop State.

AUSTAL USA ANNOUNCES NEW PARTNERSHIP

Austal USA announced a strategic partnership to build cutting-edge, autonomous uncrewed surface vehicles with Saildrone Inc.

According to the company's press release, this new partnership combines Saildrone's uncrewed surface vehicle technology with Austal USA's advanced manufacturing capabilities.

The partnership ensures production of the Saildrone Surveyor will accelerate to meet rapidly growing demand for the groundbreaking technology. The Surveyor was developed and designed by Saildrone and will be manufactured exclusively by Austal USA in Mobile.

The 65-foot-long Saildrone Surveyor is designed specifically for deep ocean mapping and Intelligence, Surveillance and Reconnaissance (ISR) applications, both above and below the water surface.

"We are extremely pleased to enter into this agreement with Saildrone," said Austal USA President Rusty Murdaugh. "It is a great fit, as both of us are leaders in our respective markets, and we both strive to provide leading-edge solutions to the U.S. Navy. With our lean manufacturing techniques and serial production capabilities, Austal USA will provide large-scale fabrication of these vehicles, and with our partner, Saildrone, rapidly get the capability to the fleet."

"Austal is leading the way in the large uncrewed sector, pioneering autonomy and reliability of much larger systems capable of carrying much heavier payloads," said Richard Jenkins, Saildrone founder and CEO. "We see these two technologies as extremely complementary. Building these two extremes of size in the same facility, and leveraging Austal's advanced manufacturing capabilities, will dramatically accelerate our ability to get Saildrones into the hands of our customers."

SITE SELECTION MAGAZINE NAMES ALABAMA POWER A TOP ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT UTILITY

Alabama Power was named one of the “Top 20 Utilities in Economic Development” by Site Selection magazine for its efforts in industry recruiting and growing jobs in the state. The company was honored for its 2021 initiatives by the Alabama Power Economic and Community Development (ECD) team, which worked to help recruit projects with $2.53 billion in new and expanded capital investment, as well as 4,110 announced jobs.

“At Alabama Power, our ECD team has a unique opportunity to make a difference in our state every single day,” said Leigh Davis, vice president of ECD at Alabama Power. “We are honored to be recognized for our commitment to innovation, industrial growth and job creation through the work we do with partners across the state.”

According to its news release, Alabama Power initiatives in site development, innovation and entrepreneurship, workforce development, sustainability and community development includes partnering with such entities as Mercedes-Benz U.S. International, The University of Alabama, the Mobile Chamber, and supporting numerous Accelerator programs across the state.

Alabama Power has operated since 1906, focusing on providing reliable and affordable power. Supporting and facilitating economic growth in Alabama has been at the company’s core since 1913, when it formed the New Industries Division, the predecessor of today’s ECD.

“For more than a century, Alabama Power has been committed to helping our state attract and grow businesses, equip Alabama’s workforce and strengthen our communities,” said Jeff Peoples, Alabama Power executive vice president of Customer and Employee Services. “It is an honor for our team’s efforts to be recognized by Site Selection.”

“For more than a century, Alabama Power has been committed to helping our state attract and grow businesses, equip Alabama’s workforce and strengthen our communities.”

Jeff Peoples, executive vice president of Customer and Employee Services, Alabama Power

“Alabama Power played an instrumental role in laying the foundations for industrial growth in the state, and it continues to spark innovation to this day,” said Greg Canfield, Secretary of the Alabama Department of Commerce. “It’s also long been a valuable partner in strategic economic development efforts that have helped transform the future of opportunity in our state.”

HUDSON COMPLETES EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Mobile County Commission President Connie Hudson completed the Association of County Commissions of Alabama (ACCA) and the Alabama Local Government Training Institute (ALGTI) educational programs for Alabama's County Commissioners. She was recognized at the 2022 Association of County Commissions of Alabama Annual Convention. Hudson joins a select group of only 76 current Alabama county commissioners who hold this distinction.

ALGTI is a partnership between Association of County Commissions of Alabama and the Government and Economic Development Institute at Auburn University.

Hudson completed the requirements for the ALGTI Commissioner Graduate Program of 70 hours of study beyond the State of Alabama requirement that each elected county commissioner complete a 50-hour education program within two years of initial election. The courses included finance, legislation, emergency management, bids/specifications, ethics/legal, technology, collaboration, intergovernmental relations and others.

"I appreciate the value of lifelong learning, especially as it relates to educational endeavors that allow me to better serve the citizens of Mobile County," said Hudson. "Completing the ALGTI Commissioner's Graduate Program offered an excellent opportunity to stay apprised of changes in state legislation and laws that impact county administration and operations, and to learn effective best practices."

Hudson was first elected to represent the residents of Mobile County Commission District 2 in 2010. Prior to that, she represented the residents of Mobile City Council District 6 for nine years. In May of 2013, the Mobile City Council named the Mobile Regional Senior Community Center in her honor.

Hudson's lifetime of civic engagement and community volunteerism allowed her to serve on multiple boards of directors, committees and task forces, including for local schools, nonprofits and civic initiatives like the Alabama Cruise Terminal.

She currently serves as the District 12 board member for ACCA, Alabama Gulf Coast Recovery Council member representing Mobile County, board member for the Mobile County

Bishop State
A Great Place To Start™

251-405-7000 | www.bishop.edu | f @ t y

Established in 1927, Bishop State Community College has a long tradition of preparing its students for work and/or career advancement. Changing with a growing community has been a staple of the college, along with offering courses for students looking for specialized study.

Bishop State has a new president who is energized and ready to make the most of what the Mobile area has to offer his students. Olivier Charles says he is ready to build on the established relationships the college already has with the community and continue to help students become gainfully employed.

“We are always prepared to pivot and meet the challenges of a changing workforce and for the sake of what the community needs,” he said.

Bishop State’s current courses of study include aviation and advanced manufacturing; a highway construction plan working with ALDOT; and a construction management program working with the city as a partner.

“We have to meet our partners where they are and be prepared to meet their needs,” said Charles.

He grew up in Mobile, where he remembers learning life lessons as a child.

“We are always prepared to pivot and meet the challenges of a changing workforce and for the sake of what the community needs.”

Olivier Charles, President,
Bishop State Community

“I grew up in Mobile and attended Calloway-Smith Middle School, so I walked through this campus every day on my way to school,” he said. “Mobile was good to me growing up, and now I have the opportunity to pay it forward. It’s one of the highest honors for me to give to this community that was so good to me.”

After attending Murphy High School, Charles went on to further his education by earning a bachelor’s degree in special education and a master’s degree in college student development from the University of West Alabama.

After graduation, Charles went to work for the University of West Alabama, Auburn University at Montgomery and Enterprise State Community College. During these years, Charles served in higher education leadership in recruitment, advising, admissions, athletics, registration, financial aid, marketing and more.

“I think these different roles I worked in have been building me up to reach where I am today,” said Charles. “I love students and being around them and their eagerness to learn. Working in education administration, I think, has prepared me for this role, and has been a step in the right direction to lead me here. And I get to come home.”

OLIVIER CHARLES, BISHOP STATE COMMUNITY COLLEGE’S NEW PRESIDENT COMES HOME

Olivier Charles says his first order of business as the president of Bishop State is to listen closely to the employees, students and the community.

Taking over Bishop State as its leader and looking at where the college is, Charles says the partnerships the college has with local industry leaders are extremely important. Alabama Power, the City of Mobile and Airbus have afforded many opportunities for Bishop State students.

“But I want people to know that we don’t just work with big industries,” added Charles. “We work with businesses of all sizes to help them with workforce needs.”

While Bishop State has a strong foothold in workforce partnerships, Charles thinks the college can do more for the local economy and for Bishop State students. He says dual enrollment classes for K-12 students are key to a student’s success, and Charles is working to increase the number of Mobile County high schoolers who take advantage of Bishop State’s dual enrollment program.

Charles explains that when a student enrolls at Bishop State, they meet with instructors and are given direction based on what they want to do. If they are looking to simply receive a specialized certification, then they are shown what they need to do to get it. If they want a degree in nursing, they are shown the path and how to get there.

“We prep students to work towards where they want to go, and we help make a path specific to them no matter the direction,” said Charles. “We want to make sure our students are prepared to enter the world, and we want them to learn here and stay here. Mobile is exploding with industry and opportunity, and more jobs means there’s a need for more skilled labor. We want to help the economic engine propel Mobile’s economic development forward.”

“Who else if not us?” asked Charles. “We want students who have a desire to learn no matter their age, race, background – we want them all. Bishop State is willing to do what it takes for all to succeed.”

For Bishop State, Charles believes the future is bright.

Charles says his first order of business as the president is to listen to Bishop State employees, students and the community.

“I am committed to being here,” said Charles. “I want to be in this community to raise my family and give back to the place that gave me so much. Bishop State remains committed to the community and to being a vessel that propels its people forward. We are a part of this community and are responsible for this community, and we are here to support economic development.”

SOUTHERN VIEW MEDIA SUPPORTING BUSINESS THROUGH DIGITAL MARKETING

In today's web and social media-dominated world, it's often a point of nostalgia to reminisce about the early days, when MySpace and a bunch of now-relegated search engines ruled the digital realm. When Southern View Media CEO Michelle Murrill thinks back to the mid-2000s, she sees the roots of a business that has evolved into a significant marketing agency supporting its community with the same passion as its clients, large and small.

Southern View Media is the Mobile Chamber's Small Business of the Month.

The company was founded in 2015, although Murrill and her husband Brad - Southern View's CFO - began working for themselves nearly a decade earlier. After dabbling in content creation, marketing and sales in the early days of Google ads, the couple moved to Charleston where Murrill started her first website, MomsofCharleston.com.

"It was a website that featured the places kids could eat free, where they could take piano lessons, or gymnastics," Murrill said. "We had a community calendar with all the going-ons in the community, and this was circa 2008 before that kind of thing really existed on the internet."

That prompted her to learn search engine optimization and the emerging juggernaut of Facebook advertising, giving the site enough of a footprint where it was eventually bought out and the Murrills moved back to Mobile. Once home, they quickly realized there was an opportunity to make an impact in digital marketing on both sides of the bay, and Southern View Media was born.

Although innovative, Murrill says her company's success also lies in its understanding of how marketing strategies in 2022 aren't much different in intention and reach than they were 20 years ago.

"I sometimes tell clients that it's basically direct mail, except online," Murrill said. "And the difference for me is that I've owned businesses, and can empathize with them more."

"We understand what they're going through, how they're trying to make decisions and find an ROI, and what meets their needs."

Although Southern View Media serves clients throughout the Gulf Coast, from restaurants to industrial manufacturers, Murrill seems to be most excited about the work her company does locally. The firm went from sharing an office in Mobile when the pandemic hit to buying a building in Daphne. Once it was deemed safe for everyone to start gathering again, it pivoted from everyone working at home to coming into the office a couple of days a week. In support of the Eastern Shore Chamber of Commerce, for which Murrill is an ambassador, Southern View's office has become a hub for regular small business meetings and expos. They even offer co-working opportunities for other businesses and business people.

"What sets us apart and makes us who we are is our networking, credibility and work throughout the community, meeting people," Murrill said.

CHAMBER CHASE TAKES FLIGHT

Tommy Faust, president of Mobile and Baldwin County markets with Trustmark Bank, chaired the 2022 Chamber Chase campaign.

Chamber Chase is the Mobile Chamber's annual 12-week initiative where Chamber volunteers call on Chamber members and prospective members to present sponsorship opportunities for events the Mobile Chamber runs throughout the year. In addition to sponsorships, the group sells memberships and advertising in Chamber publications.

Volunteers often share how members can benefit by increasing their visibility and funding relevant programs and events.

"Because of the hard work by the Chamber's volunteers, selling these sponsorships not only allow us to host our signature events, but also allows our members to connect with each other and stay involved in Chamber initiatives," said Bradley Byrne, Mobile Chamber president and CEO.

"The success of the campaign is a testament to our volunteers and all they have accomplished on behalf of the Chamber," said Tommy Faust, president of Mobile and Baldwin County markets for Trustmark Bank and leader of the 2022 Chamber Chase campaign. "A 21 percent increase in cash sponsorships and Board of Advisor commitment, says a lot about our volunteers and the value members see in sponsoring these events and being engaged at a high level."

The campaign celebrated its victory for exceeding its $1 million goal at the Mobile International Airport at Brookley.

THE MILITARY HAS A BIG IMPACT IN MOBILE

Mobile has been a key location for the American military since Gen. Andrew Jackson made camp in 1813 near what is now Royal Street in downtown Mobile. Since that time, numerous active and reserve units from all branches of the service have been assigned to the area.

Mobile is currently home to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (Mobile District), the U.S. Coast Guard Sector Mobile and the U.S. Coast Guard Air Training Center (ATC), as well as U.S. Marine Corps Reserve, Army Reserve and Alabama National Guard units.

The Mobile Chamber's Military Affairs Committee seeks to strengthen the relationship of the Mobile business community and members with military interests by communicating issues important to the military community and raising awareness of the impact the military has on our local economy.

"The Mobile Chamber has had a long partnership with local military groups, and we work together to aid them in their efforts to support and aid local veterans and active military," said Layton Little, the Mobile Chamber's director of government affairs and lead staff for the Chamber's Military Affairs Committee.

The committee is led by Richard Stimpson, chairman/investment counselor for Leavell Investment Management, who served in the U.S. Marine Corps as an infantry officer.

By working with and helping our local veterans, Stimpson said we, as a community, can help support veterans by looking for ways to incorporate them to help our area reach its full potential.

"Market outside of our area to recruit the fine service men and women who may move to this area once their service commitment is complete," he added. "There are numerous positions available in our community that would benefit from veterans' expertise."

RICHARD STIMPSON LEADS MILITARY AFFAIRS COMMITTEE WITH GRATITUDE

The Mobile Chamber's Military Affairs Committee has worked with local military groups for more than two decades, providing resources and assistance with celebratory lunches, parades and recognition ceremonies. Behind the scenes, the group works with local organizations to honor those who have served and to encourage those considering military service.

This year's Military Affairs Committee is led by Richard Stimpson, chairman/investment counselor for Leavell Investment Management, who served in the U.S. Marine Corps as an infantry officer while earning a bachelor's degree in pre-law from The University of Alabama.

"The Mobile Chamber's website includes resources and organizations available to veterans in our community," said Stimpson. "The committee hopes to be a helpful liaison for veterans and these important organizations."

Stimpson says he joined the Chamber group because of the value the Chamber's work adds to our community. "Being a veteran, it was suggested for me to serve on the Military Affairs Committee, and I am grateful for the opportunity to be involved."

When asked why he believes the committee is important to the community, Stimpson quoted President John F. Kennedy: "As we express our gratitude, we must never forget that the highest appreciation is not to utter words, but to live by them."

Stimpson believes "veterans are an invaluable asset to our community," he said. "We appreciate their service and the sacrifices made to secure the freedoms we enjoy. Kennedy's quote urges us to honor veterans with our actions, not just our words."

In addition to volunteering his time with the military committee, Stimpson is a member of Leadership Alabama, the Downtown Mobile Alliance and the Alabama Policy Institute, where he serves as the chair of the board.

To be a part of the Mobile Chamber's Military Affairs Committee, contact Layton Little at 251.431.8601 or llittle@mobilechamber.com.

68 VENTURES: TAKING NOTHING FOR GRANTED

Nathan Cox is blessed and he knows it. He says he has been given much and he doesn't take this for granted. He quotes Luke 12:48: "to whom much is given, much will be required." This simple statement closely meshes with 68 Ventures' purpose statement: "to see all we can do with all we've been given."

When Cox was younger, he wanted to be in law enforcement or the FBI, but the military came calling.

"I always had a strong passion to serve my country in the military and growing up I always knew at some junction I would go that route," said Cox. "I wanted to play football for The University of Alabama, like my father did, and I had the opportunity to do that. I always knew I would circle back to the military and serving my country in some fashion and 9/11 sped that up."

That's when Cox says he joined the Marines and fought in Iraq as a Rifle Platoon Commander, and was awarded the Navy Commendation Medal with combat "V" for Valor in recognition of his actions while in combat. Upon his return home after an injury and multiple surgeries, his father, who was in the real estate development business, had accumulated land and holdings and he turned over all his investments to Cox and left it to him to turn it into something worthwhile.

"My father was extremely successful but the day he retired there wasn't a business to take over or to come back to," said Cox. "He told me, 'you've got an education and a good reputation of telling the truth and doing the right thing, so don't mess it up;' and that was an amazing gift to be given. His mentorship and investment have been invaluable to me."

Having grown up around the real estate business, Cox said it was natural he would pick up that mantle and make something of his father's gift." Today, he has 17 successful companies, mostly related to the real estate and land development industries.

"I started right at the end of the heyday of real estate and the world started unraveling but I was still involved in it and saw the potential of what the business would be like for me," said Cox. "I am also fortunate to be in a vibrant and growing area that created a lot of opportunities for people in my field."

Cox says his time in the military was so impactful that it helped shape him into the businessman he is today, and it taught him many life lessons. He says it gave him the confidence to overcome challenges and the relationships have lasted to this day.

"Being a leader, I put the needs of others in front of my own," said Cox. "There's an expression - leaders eat last. In the military, at least in the Marines, the lowest ranked person eats first and I feel like that's how the world should work. I have a responsibility to serve you, not be the boss and you serve me. That was a big lesson for me to learn."

To give back to the military community, Cox worked with several investors to create the Fallen Heroes Memorial at the Battleship Memorial Park to pay tribute to all the Alabamians who have given their lives in service since 9/11.

"The project took a long time to complete but we were able to raise the money and had generous sponsors and it was so cool to be able to honor the people from our state," said Cox.

A holding company with 17 operating businesses, Cox describes 68 Ventures as an entrepreneurial-based platform with the vision to bet on the right people and give them the resources they need to be successful.

Cox says the company's portfolio circles back to real estate and development, but there is room for more opportunities to diversify and build relationships with others that have the expertise to build businesses in different industries.

"We at 68 Ventures are most inspired by the things that have the most impact on the community and things that make the quality of life better," said Cox.

Looking to the future, Cox says he wants to help people and his community in more ways, not only helping businesses grow but also looking to develop future entrepreneurs and investing in local schools. His most recent accomplishment was offering Bayside Academy land to expand the school.

"We have a great relationship with the Baldwin County Board of Education and we've been able to donate several school sites for them - by the end of the year, it will be five sites; including one for Baldwin County and one for Bayside," said Cox. "That only happens because we have wonderful philanthropic partners that are affiliates with the things we are doing."

One such investment Cox has made is in Baldwin Prep Academy. "It's a huge game changer for our community," said Cox. "They are educating kids to come out of high school with a diverse training program for all industries, including construction, welding but also cosmetology, and create a wonderful platform for about 800 kids to enter the workforce every year. I am extremely excited by that prospect."

When asked about his business' name, he got excited to tell the story of hockey player Jaromír Jágr, who wore the number 68 to remind him of his grandfather (who was killed the 1968 Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia) and of the reason he played the game - to honor his family and persevere when times get hard. Cox says his 68 is being reminded of the people who came before him and who helped get him to where he is. He says it's a tribute to them and a reminder that he is here for a reason.

By giving back to the community in as many ways as possible, Cox hopes this will make the area an even better place to live and where residents will want to stay.

"My dad always said, 'you help because you can, you don't help for recognition,'" said Cox. "We help because we've been put in a position to do it."

VICTOR GASTON SET TO RETIRE AFTER 40 YEARS

Victor Gaston, who has represented Alabama District 100 since 1982, making him one of the longest-serving members in the Alabama House of Representatives, is retiring after 40 years of government service. His current term ends Nov. 6, 2022, and he will not seek re-election.

Before his time in office, Gaston worked as a teacher and administrator for Mobile County Public Schools. He was a timber farmer and served in the U.S. military as a member of the Marine Corps Reserves and the Alabama National Guard.

He earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Mississippi; a master's degree from the University of South Alabama; and a doctorate in education from Auburn University.

Gaston currently serves on the Rules, Ways and Means, General Fund, Transportation, Utilities and Infrastructure, and Mobile County Legislative Committees. He chairs two committees, the House Legislative Council and the Permanent Oil and Gas Study Committee, and is the vice chair of the Joint Legislative Council. Gaston is a former member of the U.S. Energy Council and speaker pro tempore.

He sits on the advisory council for the Assistance League of Mobile, the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC), the State Building Commission and the Southwest Alabama division of the National Mental Health Association. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa and a former member of the White House Commission on Presidential Scholars.

According to the state's website, Gaston has received numerous awards and honors for his time in service, including:

- Alabama Republican Party Legislative Honors, Humanitarian of the Year for service to those with physical and mental disabilities;
- Award for outstanding service and contributions from the Mobile deaf community;
- Alabama Library Association Award for exceptional service;
- Conservation of Alabama Soil and Water Advisory Committee Award;
- Lifetime Achievement Award from the Mobile County Republican Executive Committee;
- Distinguished Service Award from the University of South Alabama;
- YMCA's Youth Advocacy Award;
- Electric Cities of Alabama 2013 Legislative Award;
- Alabama Association of Regional Councils' Outstanding Elected Official Award; and the
- Israel Leadership award 2016.

HOW TO GET INVOLVED WITH THE MOBILE CHAMBER

Growth Alliance Task Force promotes the growth of minority-owned businesses through increased awareness of Chamber programs and membership and provides entrepreneurial training workshops and diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) business forums.

There are many reasons to join the Mobile Chamber, and one of them is the opportunity to be a part of the local community through a Chamber task force or committee. The Chamber works with local organizations on topics of interest to generate ideas to improve and bring new industry to the area.

“Serving on a Chamber-led committee is how I got involved in the community, and it led me to meet so many great business professionals and make a difference where I could in the Mobile area,” said Bradley Byrne, president and CEO for the Mobile Chamber. “No matter your interest, our Chamber is sure to have a committee to pique your interest and help you take advantage of your membership.”

Below is a list of Mobile Chamber committees and task forces, along with the department facilitating the group and who to contact to get involved.

SMALL BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT

Contact Brenda Rembert at 251.431.8607 or brembert@mobilechamber.com.

Executive Roundtable

A monthly meeting open to all Chamber members, featuring presentations by local business executives on timely topics affecting small businesses. Members share information about best practices to help manage and grow their companies. The roundtable meets the third Tuesday of each month.

Growth Alliance Task Force

This group promotes the growth of minority-owned businesses through increased awareness of Chamber programs and membership and provides entrepreneurial training workshops and diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) business forums. Task force members serve on active subcommittees including Business Development, Outreach, Finance and Sponsorships. The group meets on the first Tuesday of each month.

DISCOVER NEW ENGLAND'S AUTUMN FOLIAGE

Featuring Martha's Vineyard and the Conway Scenic Railroad

SEPTEMBER 23, 2023

Boston | Cape Cod | Martha's Vineyard | Newport | Quechee Gorge State Park | Kennebunkport

The Mobile Chamber invites you to enjoy New England's Autumn foliage and rich history. The trip will leave September 23, 2023 and travel throughout the East coast of the U.S.

Your adventure starts in historic Boston, Mass., for a city tour and on to Plymouth Rock, where our forefathers first landed on American soil.

Later, make your way to Cape Cod for a traditional New England dinner before departing for Martha's Vineyard the next day. Enjoy this playground for many rich and famous, including former President Bill Clinton. The island's coast has astounding cliffs at Gay's Head with spectacular shoreline views.

Next stop is Newport, Rhode Island, and a visit to Vanderbilt's Breakers mansion. The next morning, set out along the scenic back roads of Vermont, taking you through beautiful mountain villages such as Newfane and Grafton. Weston is home to the Vermont Country Store, "Purveyors of the Practical and Hard-To-Find," and Woodstock has been called the "prettiest small town in America."

The continues to the Kancamagus Scenic Byway through the White Mountains, where you can see the world's most spectacular fall foliage as the road meanders through vast forests, old logging roads and Indian hunting paths.

Your trip concludes after you set sail for a journey across Lake Winnepesaukee on what has been called the "most beautiful cruise in New England." Sail from the home port of Weirs Beach aboard the MS Mount Washington to Wolfeboro, known as the oldest resort town in New Hampshire. Continue to Kennebunkport, one of Maine's coastal jewels and the summer home to many of America's rich and famous.
